Does the Red Cross charge servicemen and women for any of its services or supplies?

No. Red Cross policy prohibits charging members of the armed forces for articles or services.

Did the Red Cross charge servicemen for food and lodging in clubs and hotels during World War II?

Allied soldiers, whose pay scale was far below that of the Americans, were required to pay in their clubs and canteens. For this reason the military authorities decided that it would be more equitable to charge American servicemen for similar service.

Sheriff John Papndieck today stated that the Sheriff Department is stepping up its traffic law enforcement activities in response to a state-wide request-from the Chairman of the Michigan Safety Commission, Owen J. Cleary, Secretary of State. This activity is part of the Obey Traffic Lawe—Keep Your License emphasis program sponsored by the Commission and supported by all safety groups.

According to Sheriff Papendick According to Sheriff Papendick, as long as traffic accidents continue to increase throughout the state motorists must expect law enforcement to increase. Accidents won't come down until traffic violations come down. And violations can't be decreased until more violators are apprehended.

Sheriff Papendick explained that the enforcement activity of his agency will be tightened up in two ways—by gathering more evitwo ways—by gathering more evidence to support more serious charges in violations that threationed to endanger another—and by stopping more motorists for less serious offenses to discourage them from committing more serious ones in the future.

"This business of increasing en-"This business of increasing enforcement because of increasing accidents will naturally result in more motorists having their licenses suspended—because it is the motorist the law enforcement agencies stop and those found guilty by the courts that are cited for license hearings by the departfor license hearings by the department of state," the Sheriff added.
Sheriff Papendick said, "Michigam motorists who violate the Sheriff Papendick said, "Michigan motorists who violate the traffic law must expect to lose, their license. They have violated the basis on which the privilege of driving was extended to them a promise to obey the law and drive safely. Let's Join Hands

Every day we hear of the distress, need, or adversity of one of our fellow citizens. Sometimes the need is close at home, sometimes it is at a far distant point. No matter where, each of us has an impulse to help an impulse as old as the human heart.

But as individuals we frequently can do little. No one of us can afford to make a sizable contribution to every person whose trouble or plight appeals to us. All of us banded together, however, each giving what he can afford, will save lives, restore health, or bring comfort and happiness to many in distress.

Through the American Red Cross each of us may make his contribution easily and efficiently

By joining the Red Cross WE ARE THERE to restore the shattered home of a disaster victim; to give emergency help to the family of a serviceman; to provide lifesaving and health restoring blood for the ill and injured; to brighten the weary hours of a hospital patient; to help save and revive a drowning child.

Chartered by Congress and charged with important and specific responsibilities, the Red Cross has been meeting the needs of thousands of stricken or troubled men and women and children each day for more than 70 years.

Only the participation of all of us makes that neighborly service possible. Answer the call of your Red Cross — Join and serve your fellow men.

This nation owes a great deal of tribute to the horse for the valuable service it has rendered in the past. They accomplished all of the following jobs from the start until we became one hundred million in number: pulled the farm implements in all of the forty eight states, furnished the power for planting, harvesting and hauling to market and distributing points where it was needed, the power to load and unload our ships and trains of their cargoes, hauled it to the cities and returned with manufactured products for shipment. When you were sick the doctor came to you or you went to the doctor with the aid of a horse. When you wanted to marry, they hauled you to the preacher. And when someone died, they hauled them to their last resting place. Now more modern methods do all of these tasks. The least we can do is erect a monument to the horse. What they have done should never be forgotten. It takes twenty-five million cows in the United States to supply us with milk and other dairy, products. At present a good cowis worth two hundred and fifty dollars and must be three years old before she is a milk producer. She is at her best at the age of five or six years and good as a producer for about ten years. Crawford County produced milk is good. Try some today. Sold at Hunter's AuSable Dairy.

Speaking of Families By BETH JUDSON _

We were talking about jealousy, to think," said Mrs. John Reed King, wife of the fa-mous master of ceremonies, "that if you treated your children-exactly alike, they'd never have cause to be jealous. But I learned a good lesson!"

When the Kings' two daughters Mach the Aings two daugaters and Julio-were tots, Mrs. King was sure she had the right idea. "Whatever I do for one, I'll do for the ether," she reasoned. It would be that simple. And so the little King sisters wore the same style dresses. Had the same haircuts. Received the same gifts. And enjoyed the same treats. Mrs. King showed no partiality—ever.

Yet Joanne, the older, was clearly jealous of Julie. Some jealousy, authorities tell us, is natural and normal. It's there and it should be. But this went too fari

"They quarreled so violently," Mrs. King said, "that I never thought they'd live through it. Finally, it dawned on me: Joanne felt that she was being pulled down to Julie's level. And each girl was being cheated of the right to be herself."

So-a change in tactics. While Mrs. King was still careful not to play favorites, she focussed her efforts on building up their individuality.

For one thing, she saw to it that Joanne alone enjoyed the privileges of her older age. She went to bed later. Was the first to take dencing lessons . . . to go to the village alone . . . to go to an occasional movie with her friends. Julie simply had to wait until she, too, was old enough.

Another important thing: The encourage the slightest flicker of each girl's special interests and abilities. They helped Joanne de-velop her interest in photography. And Julie, her pleasure in stamp collecting_

Some time ago, Look magazine ran a feature on the King family -with pictures. Joanne, unfortunately, was away. There was no picture of her at all!

Of course she was disappointed. Yet she showed not the slightest resentment. A protty good test for a 13-year-old! Joanne, it seems, now feels so secure as a person that she has no need to be jealous of her sister.

"The girls get along so beautifully now," said Mrs. John Reed King, "that I do feel gratified. There's no doubt in my mind that a lot of jealousy can be avoided by helping each child make the most of her individual talents and traits."

Emma Louise Pochelon Watched Father Build FTD

Editor's note: We reprint the following clipping from the Detroit News, Feb. 23rd edition. As the Pochelon family has long been summer residents in Loviella, it should be of interest to many of our readers.

BY MARY MORRIS

Emma Louise Pochelon, one o Emma Louise Pochelon, one of the commentators in the Michigan State Florist Association's annual design school and business clinic now going on at the Statler, is a young woman steeped in tradition of the flower business.

Her grandmother was Mrs. Louise Pochelon Bemb who came to Detroit from Wurtemberg, Germany, in 1893 and opened a tiny flower stall at the old Central Market (where Cadillac Square now stands).

Market (where Cadillac Square now stands).

From that stall Mrs. Bemb and her son Albert Pochelon, Emma Louise's father, built one of the largest flower businesses in Mich-

MAGIC NAME

But what makes Pochelon really a name to conjuge with in tradecircles is the part Albert Pochelon played in breathing life into Florist Telegraph Delivery Association.

ist Telegraph Delivery Association.

It was a weak organization with only 57 members and practically no treasury when, In 1912, he became its secretary and set up of ficial national headquarters for it in his four-story floral establishment on Bates avenue.

For 16 years he traveled (at his own expense) throughout th United States and visited European countries enlisting FTD members.

THIRD GENERATION

THIRD GENERATION

At the time of his retirement in 1928 the membership had grown to 4,500, with offices in every country in the world. Before he died in 1948 he had seen that figure more than doubled.

Emma Lou, third generation Pochelon florist who operates egreenhouse and flower shop at 19816 Woodward, is one of FTD directors at large. She has FTD statistics at tongue's tip.

Membership now totals 18,900 internationally and a $43,000,000 volume business is done in this country alone. It has its own international unit of currency, the "fleurin," worth about 25 cents in American money and not subject to fluctuation on any money market.

Is the florist business a good only Good only for the woman — or man for that matter — who is willing to gamble every single day because what commodity is more perishable than a flower?" is Miss Pochelon's answer.

Klein Attends Teen-Age Driver Safety Meet

Richard Klein was in East Lansing on February 26th and 27th to attend the first Teen-Age Driver Safety Conference to be held in Michigan. The conference, sponsored by the Michigan State Safety Commission and Youth Advisory Council of Michigan Youth Commission, was held in Kellogg Center Michigan State College, in co-operation with area teen age traffic safety conference and Governor's Teen-Age Traffic Safety Committee. Safety Committee.

and Governors Teen-Age Traffic Safety Committee.

The purpose of the Conference was to obtain frank views of teenagers on their own and other driving problems and accident causes and how they may be remedied; to better understand the increasingly critical traffic safety problem; To obtain recommendations from teen-agers on how driving practices may be improved: To recommend for action to student bodies, to youth-serving organizations and to proper authorities resolutions that the conference believes will improve the teen-age driver and other drivers; To set up teen-age safety organization machinery at the state, region and high school levels and to discussiviable activities and follow up

Steve Tips the Balance

Was just leaving home this morning when the Missus reminded me to stop at Steve and Al's Meat Market for a pound of hamburger, "Be sure to get it from Steve," she said,

"Why?" I wondered. So when I got to the market I asked Steve if he knew. "I'll tell you, Joe," he said. "Al and I sell the same meat, and a pound is a pound. Maybe it's just that we go at it differently.

"Al loads the scales and takes away 'til he has a pound. But I put too little on and start adding.

To your wife — that probably looks like a better buy."

From where I sit, there's always more than one way to ap-proach a thing and still come ou fair-and-square to all. My wife likes a cup of tea with dinner; prefer a temperate glass of beer We get along fine. Gets me pretty mad though, when someboo starts "throwing his weigh around" and demands that I se things exactly his way.

THIS new '54 GMC light-duty wasn't born just to win beauty

Sure, its sleek lines, full-width grille and panoramic windshield are bandsomely un-trucklike.

There's the same dashing air about the inside, too. Two-tone color scheme, Harmonizing, supple-asleather upholstery. Smart instrument panel, with dials clustered for instant reading.

But mister - take another look!

A burly, brawny brute of an engine -a real truck engine-makes you think of a Miss America who also can bend horseshoes. 125 horsepower says that this beauty can heft a top load with case and dash.

That's more bower than some makers pack into their two-ton models. That's more usable power than in any other ___ 6-cylinder engine in its class!

And its wide, deep box holds at least 8 cubic feet more than the roomy '53 model. That tail gate is graintight—and sand-tight.

Finally, it offers Truck Hydra-Matic Drive* that saves you, saves your cash, saves your time.

(Note to the luxury-minded: there's a DE LUXE model at extra cost, with ckrome grille and trim, two-tone paint, curved rear corner windows-the works!)

Come in and drive this great GMC. It will do all its own selling!

Our recent trip to Chile probing rumors of "fabulous" trout fishing in that country brought forth some startling facts about rainbows – actual descendants of Michigan rainbow trout planted there some 20 years ago. Chile – at least the central portion of that elongated republic – is in the aame south latitude as Michigan is north. Theoretically the climate might well be the same (except that Stimmers and winters are reversed on the calendar), and trout might be expected to prosper equally well in both Michigan and Chile.

If such were the fortunate case Michigan anglers would be catching is pound trout only 4 years old! That's how fast they grow in South America! Protected by the towering Andes on the east, and warmed by the Pacific Ocean on the west, Chile enjoys mild temperatures the year 'round. Rainbows apparently feed voraciously in both lakes and streams for the entire 12 months of the year.

Chile enjoys mild temperatures the year 'round. Rainhows apparently feed voraciously in both lakes and streams for the entire 12 months of the year.

Special Diet Helps

Their diet is extraordinarily rich in elements contributing to rapid growth—and the diet is mainly one dish: the pancora crab. Found along the rocky shores of lakes and rivers, the pancora looks—like—a step—in—the right direction!
